Letter from the President

Dear Friends and Colleagues,

It is my pleasure to welcome you to the 2021 Honors and Awards Luncheon, a celebration of architecture and design. While we honor particular people, projects, and teams, we also recognize the architects, engineers, consultants, and collaborators who work diligently every day to create innovative environments and make the world a better place. New York’s design professionals inspire one another to look beyond the status quo and seek excellence. We applaud not only today’s award recipients but the whole community for establishing and achieving such high standards.

Today we celebrate the significant accomplishments of three distinguished honorees who have helped shape our industry in unique ways. Cathleen McGuigan receives the Architecture in Media Award for her writing in architecture, design, and planning issues in NYC and beyond. Justin Garret Moore, AICP, NOMA, is honored with the Champion of Architecture Medal, for his lifetime’s work in advancing design excellence in the public and civic life. Finally, Kim Yao, AIA, is recognized with the Medal of Honor in recognition of her incredible leadership—in design, in teaching, in our Chapter, and in our community.

This year’s Design Awards competition received 214 submissions and 133 firms. Distinguished jurors from across the country and abroad conferred 24 awards on projects built in New York City or by New York City-based architects practicing all over the world. This exemplary work will be displayed in the Design Awards exhibition at the Center for Architecture and will be on view from October 2021 through January 2022.

We are pleased to welcome the honorees, their friends, and their colleagues. This afternoon would not be possible without the dedication of the members of the Luncheon Circle, the Honors and Design Awards Committees, and the Design Awards jurors who selected this year’s award recipients. Thank you all for your support of AIA New York and our mission to show that design matters!

Sincerely,

Kenneth A. Lewis, AIA
2021 AIANY Board President

Architecture in Media Award

The Architecture in Media Award, formerly known as the Stephen A. Kliment Oculus Award, recognizes individuals with a career that elevates and challenges the architectural profession.

Champion of Architecture Medal

The Champion of Architecture Medal is awarded to individuals who are not registered architects for their support of projects that enhance the built environment.

Medal of Honor

The Medal of Honor, conferred by AIA New York since 1914, recognizes an architect or firm of architects for distinguished work and high professional standing. In 2011, internationally renowned medalic artist, João Duarte worked with Daniel Libeskind, FAIA and Chapter leaders to create a contemporary honorary medal, which was first conferred in 2013.
Architecture in Media Award

Cathleen McGuigan

Cathleen McGuigan is editor-in-chief of Architectural Record, the nation’s leading architecture publication for 130 years. Under her leadership, Record has won, among numerous other editorial honors, the Grand Neal Award, which is the top American Business Media award for overall excellence. A former architecture critic and arts editor of Newsweek, McGuigan has a BA from Brown University and was awarded a Loeb Fellowship at the Graduate School of Design at Harvard. She has taught at Columbia University’s Graduate School of Journalism and has been a Poynter Fellow at Yale University. Besides Newsweek and Record, her articles have appeared in such publications as The New York Times Magazine, Smithsonian, and Rolling Stone. She sits on the board of trustees of the Skyscraper Museum and the Center for Architecture in New York and is vice president of the Loeb Alumni Council.
Justin Garrett Moore, a transdisciplinary designer and urbanist, is the program officer for the Humanities in Place program at the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation. He has extensive planning and design experience ranging from regional and urban systems, policies, and projects to grassroots and community-focused planning, design, public realm, and arts initiatives. At the Mellon Foundation, his work focuses on advancing equity, inclusion, and social justice through place-based initiatives, built environments, cultural heritage projects, digital and ephemeral programs, and commemorative spaces and landscapes.
Kim Yao, AIA, is Principal of Architecture Research Office (ARO), a New York City firm dedicated to architecture that unites strategy and intelligence with beauty and form. ARO’s diverse body of work has earned the firm more than a hundred design awards, including the 2020 AIA Architecture Firm Award. Yao holds an undergraduate degree in architecture from Columbia University and a Master of Architecture from Princeton University.

She has taught at Columbia University’s Graduate School of Architecture, Planning and Preservation, the School of Constructed Environments at Parsons the New School for Design, and Barnard College, and has lectured throughout the United States and abroad. Yao sits on the boards of AIA New York and the Center for Architecture as Immediate Past President of AIA New York.
AIA New York’s annual Design Awards program recognizes outstanding architectural design by AIA New York members, New York City-based architects in any location, and work in New York City by architects around the globe.

Awards were given in four categories: Architecture, Interiors, Projects, and Urban Design. In each category, jurors establish criteria, evaluate excellence, and determine the awards given for Honor, Merit, and Citation.
The Architecture category recognizes design excellence in completed buildings.

The Interiors category recognizes design excellence in building interiors and related architectural work, as well as new and improved approaches to building components and architectural products.

The Projects category recognizes conceptual work, including but not limited to research, innovation, land art, pavilions, architectural objects, and installations. Work in this category does not need to be intended for construction.

The Urban Design category seeks the most compelling work and ideas, both built and unbuilt, that confront and resolve environmental and urban challenges at a scale larger than that of an individual building.
About Us

Founded in 1857, AIA New York is the oldest and largest chapter of the American Institute of Architects. Our members include more than 4,300 practicing architects, allied professionals, students, and public members interested in architecture and design. AIA New York is dedicated to three goals: design excellence, public outreach, and professional development.

For more information, please visit www.aiany.org.
Professional Programs

AIA New York empowers its members to generate programming, explore new issues, and advance professional practice through its 26 program committees.

Its committee produce hundreds of programs each year, engaging more than 40,000 annual attendees.

Committees have secured direct funding for projects ranging from the Zero Waste Design Guidelines and mentorship initiatives that connect emerging and seasoned professionals to symposia on universal design and how water will shape the future cities.

Advocacy

Together with our members, AIA New York is the leading advocate for architects, the profession, and the built environment in New York City. At all levels of government, we fight for legislation that betters the profession, leading the charge to make sure our laws encourage sustainable design. At the Center for Architecture, we have hosted candidates, elected officials, and agency officials to provide our members with direct access to city government. We also help to place our members inside of government, such as by working with the Manhattan borough president to appoint our members to community boards throughout Manhattan.
Center for Architecture

During the 2020–21 school year, the Center for Architecture reached 3,600 students, teachers, and parents through virtual school, family, and youth programs and provided free online resources to over 36,000 unique visitors through our Architecture at Home webpage. In-person programming will return this summer.

Together, AIA New York and the Center for Architecture award scholarships and grants to architecture students and mid-career professionals. Despite the turbulence of the last year, in 2020 we awarded over $117,000 through our joint scholarship program.
Digital Exhibitions

Following the closure of our space as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic, in 2020 the Center for Architecture transformed a selection of popular past exhibitions to a digital exhibition format in order to provide high-quality content to our now-remote audience. These digitized exhibitions include Close to the Edge: The Birth of Hip-Hop Architecture, Single Story Project, and Topiary Tango.

The Center for Architecture also created original content for its digital exhibition archive, including Visualize NYC 2021 and The Global Phenomenon of Multifaith Worship Spaces.
Center for Architecture Lab

The Center for Architecture Lab is a multi-month, multi-disciplinary residency program that offers new voices in design full authorship over dedicated areas of the Center for Architecture’s digital platforms to create compelling and provocative content that elevates underrepresented perspectives. This year’s inaugural residents are the Indigenous Scholars of Architecture, Planning and Design (ISAPD).
